

Rachel Mufson

We woke up in the morning with suitcases in hand
We were ready to help a demolished land
A twister a year before ruined many lives
People were now trying to survive
The plane ride was short
The pilot said we would be landing soon
Finally, we arrived at noon

Oklahoma we finally arrived
We got off the plane and went for a drive
We came to a stop at a rebuilt school
Unfortunately, the incident there was pretty cruel
During the tornado six kids and two teachers passed
Their remembrance will always last

The next place we visited
Was Mrs. Henderson's house
The debris was insanity
However, Jteen cleaned up the mess with the help of Habitat for Humanity
Mrs. Henderson was grateful and kind
And loved that here house was being redesigned

The saddest part to the trip was the Oklahoma Bombing Memorial
Memories of the bombing were very pictorial
It was very devastating
The lives that were taken
However, their recognition will never be unshaken

On a happier note the next day we listened to a Native American storyteller
Whose legends were absolutely stellar
We also went to a Baptist church.
And sang the gospels
And learned about Jesus and his apostles

The last day we went to the Jesus House
We gave food and talked to the homeless
However, learning about their lives was our main focus
We listened to their choir and heard their stories
That was so much fun
Sadly, our day there was done

We headed back home to the freezing cold
These everlasting memories will never get old

Jteen makes an impact each time
I hope you guys enjoy this rhyme

Thank you,
Jteen and Habitat for Humanity for an amazing experience!
